

Where to Retire
July/August 2003

TENNESSEE
Fairfield Glade
Fairfield Glade, Tennessee

On the Cumberland Plateau, this self-sufficient community gives residents an amenity-laden lifestyle in a peaceful rural setting, yet it's convenient to both Knoxville and Nashville. A major resort and residential area, it has four noted golf courses, 11 lakes, pools, tennis, horseback trails, dining and shopping. The nearby town of Crossville adds cultural amenities and medical facilities.

Joan and Bob Evans planned to retire somewhere in California where they worked, but when a daughter moved to north Georgia she convinced them to look in the Southeast. "We saw this and loved it. The people were thoroughly helpful, everyone from sales clerks to waitresses, the realty office and people living here. We were treated so friendly by everyone. We love that there are no fences. Its open land but you're not isolated, and there are so many activities," Joan says. "We have lots of beautiful trees."

Prices: $80,000s-$800,000s for single-family homes and attached townhomes.

Status: 3,800 homes sold of 8,000 planned on 12,260 acres.

Age-restricted: No

Information: www.hughesres.com

Hughes Real Estate Services - www.hughesres.com

